Designing for Learning: A Focus on Community Learning

Stirling and Clackmannanshire

Designing for Learning: A Focus on Community Learning is a 'bespoke' 1-day event, aimed at participants who have previously completed DfL Step 1 and 2.

The training is designed to focus specifically on exploring the key concept of 'Community Learning' in more depth.

Participants will have the opportunity to:

- refresh prior knowledge and learning from Step 1 and 2
- experience additional community building tools, strategies and activities
- design new community builders
- engage in professional reading and dialogue
- reflect on the impact of community builders in their particular setting
- explore the purposeful placement of community builders within curriculum design

In order to gain the most from the day, participants are invited to bring along examples of community learning activities from their setting/class/school. However, this is not a pre-requisite for attendance.

Date of Event: Thursday 26th March 2015

Number of Participants: Up to 25
